

MANY NEW TOYS SEEN ON COUNTERS

But It's Only Early Shoppers Who Will Get Choice.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR BUSY READERS

Meet me down town tomorrow and begin that "delayed early" shopping tour.

The merchants say the procrastinator this year will be sorry afterward.

A few more toys today—the children are having their innings.

Get a writing desk for the little scribbler. Just like yours, but smaller; price about $3.

There's a glittering array of dolls' furniture in white and gold. Prices, $1 up.

Read the list of moderate priced games enumerated below.

"The Twentieth Century Limited" is a formidable train, with velocipede attachment, which may be had for $25, if you are hunting an expensive toy.

I presume you have noticed the tendency of a lot of your neighbors to go right at the question of Christmas shopping a month ahead of time? It's a great tip. You can't lose by following suit. The merchants all tell you so, and it is not a selfish motive that actuates them, either, for when you wait until about December 22 to start out you are just making it hard on everybody. There'll be enough tardy ones as it is. Try not to be among the number unless it's just to rather "clean up" or care for some one temporarily overlooked.

Yesterday we were talking toys—something for the little fellows who appropriate Christmas as particularly their own. I'll furnish you a few more hints today.

The little miss—or the lad, too, as to that—who is fond of scribbling might like one of those miniature desks being shown by some of the stores. Just like the writing desk in your own room, except it's smaller, with an accompanying little stool. Price ranges about $5 and $4.

Some of those half-grown pieces of mission furniture also might not be amiss. Just the thing for the outdoor doll house.

As to that, you can buy this year almost any size toy house you desire, and the mission pieces would look rather natural as a part of the furnishings.

They are not exactly new, but I never have seen a more glittering line of white doll furniture, finished in gold stripes, than is being displayed this season in some of the stores. Pieces from $1 up.

Jumping to something more expensive, if you want to spend about $25 and make your boy thoroughly content, why don't you look into that new "Twentieth Century Limited" engine and caboose, with velocipede attachment hidden, that is guaranteed to go almost as fast as though it had steam in it. It's the most natural toy in appearance I've yet run across.

Then there's the "Scoop, or the Cub Reporter," game, which is played with cards and seven persons. It is more for the older children, but almost anyone these days can realize the dire consequences of a "scoop," which makes the game an interesting and exciting one. Price around 50 cents.

"Baseballitis" and "Worth While" are two additional card games. The former is destined to keep alive the subject of baseball in many a home this winter. These two are also of moderate price.

Tomorrow I am going on a still hunt for gifts that are suitable for the older members of the family, for most families have people of all ages to look out for.

It might be well for you to meet me down town tomorrow and begin that shopping task you've been putting off from day to day.

A WISE SHOPPER.

KREISLER'S WORK BETTER THAN EVER

Critics Say Improvement of German Violinist Is Marked.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—One thing which most people do not know about Fritz Kreisler, the German violinist, is that his wife, the widow of a former wealthy German, of New York, is an occupant of a box at all his performances, at least, when he appears in the metropolis.

Persons who remember Mr. Kreisler years ago say that he is now playing with a more refined art than ever before. They say his programs this season include some of his own compositions, which are popular.

CHARGING FOR PATIENTS.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—Notice was today sent to the trustees and superintendents of all hospitals for the insane in Pennsylvania that they must not charge for patients on parole. It is said that this practice has been indulged in by a number of institutions.

REVOLVERS SAVE LIVES OF WOMEN

Police, at Fire, Threaten to Shoot Any Who Jump From Windows.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—By firing many shots into the air and threatening to shoot the first man or woman who jumped, the New York police today adopted a novel method of saving life. Despite the startling methods, two persons were fatally injured, a third is missing, and a fourth out by flying glass, while seven were overcome by smoke in a fire in a four-story tenement house in Brooklyn.

The dying are:

Mrs. Blanche McTune and her four months' old baby; injured by leaping from window.

A score of families lived in the double tenement. When the smoke began to spread through the house, they rushed to the windows. Mrs. McTune, holding her baby in her arms, leaped.

Others prepared to follow her example. The police drew their revolvers and threatened to shoot anyone who jumped, holding the panic-stricken people in the burning building until firemen raised ladders.

CRAFTY PRISONER SEARCHED IN TIME

Guards Find Key Capable of Unlocking Any Cell—McKee's Precaution.

"Take that man into my office; remove every stitch of clothing; and search him from head to foot."

That was the order given by Warden McKee, of the District Jail, when Edward Letchemere, alias Clarendon Henri, was ushered into the prison here just after completing a three-year term at Columbus, Ohio. Today Warden McKee is glad he took the precaution.

Hidden about Letchemere's waist and suspended on a tiny rubber band was found a small key that would unlock any padlock in the jail. The warden tried the key and it did the work. Then Letchemere, who has made an escape or two in his time and who came near sawing out of the District Jail when last confined here, was hustled in the cell once occupied by Charles Guiteau.

IN SCHOOL.

The Teacher—All your arithmetic problems are wrong. If this happens again I'll tell your father.

The Pupil—But pa did 'em for me!—Comic Cuts.

LIQUOR BENEFICIARIES.

YORK, Pa., Nov. 16.—The sincerity of purpose of liquor men who give organs and windows to churches was questioned by the Rev. Harry Daniels, pastor of the West Street Methodist Church, today, in addressing the York Ministerial Association. Such gifts, he said, are a great embarrassment to pastors.
